"Climbing on other people's bandwagons" is the fifth principle that Mc Ginnis suggests. (12) A good leader needs to identify the beliefs and causes of the people that he or she works with (13) By using these good ideas, he or she can encourage them Success is the sixth role. (25) Renewing oneself through sports, reading, going to a restful spot, etc. are all necessary for the good leader to become enegized and to successfully perform the other eleven principles.

(14) employing models. To encourage Succes is the sixth role.
