"The Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World" was a gift of friendship from the people of France to the United States and is recognized as a universal symbol of freedom and democracy. The Statue of Liberty was dedicated on October 28, 1886. It was designated as a National Monument in 1924. Employees of the National Park Service have been caring for the colossal copper statue since 1933.

The statue is settled in Liberty Island in the Upper New York Bay, U.S., commemorating the friendship of the peoples of the United States and France. It represents a woman holding a torch in her raised right hand and a tablet bearing the adoption date of the Declaration of Independence (July 4, 1776) in her left. An elevator carries visitors to the observation deck in the pedestal, which may also be reached by stairway, and a spiral staircase leads to an observation platform in the figure's crown.

A French historian, Edouard de Laboulaye, made the proposal for the statue. Funds were contributed by the French people, and work began in France in 1875 under sculptor Frédéric-Auguste Bartholdi. The colossus was presented to the American minister to France Levi Morton in a ceremony in Paris on July 4, 1884. In 1885 the completed statue was disassembled and shipped to New York City. The pedestal, designed by American architect Richard Morris Hunt.The statue, mounted on its pedestal, was dedicated by President Grover Cleveland on October 28, 1886. The site was added to UNESCO's World Heritage List in 1984.

We think that modern humans appeared in Africa about 200.000 years ago. But they didn't stay in Africa. They migrated out of Africa to the Middle East and then to the rest of the world. Throughout history, people have migrated from one place to another. People, it seems, like to move.

Since the 17th century, many European people moved from Europe to the Americas. They left Spain and Portugal and moved to South America.

Many Northern European migrated to North America. In the United States, most people arrived in New York. Some stayed on the East Coast, but many people migrated to the West Coast using wagon trains.

So, why do people move? First, there is economic migration. People move to find work and a good life. Second, there forced migration. People move because of wars; it is not safe to stay in their homes.

Of courses, many people don't migrate. They stay in the same place all their lives. But people like to visit different countries on their vacations. People, it seems, just like to move.

Planet Nine

Planet Nine is a hypothetical planet in the outer region of the Solar System. Its gravitational effects could explain the unlikely clustering of orbits for a group of extreme trans-Neptunian objects, bodies with average distances from the Sun that are more than 250 times that of Earth. These objects tend to make their closest approaches to the Sun in one sector, and their orbits are similarly tilted. Their improbable alignments suggest that an undiscovered planet may be shepherding the orbits of the most distant known Solar System objects. Planet Nine would have a predicted mass five to ten times that of Earth, and an elongated orbit extending 400 to 800 times as far from the Sun as the Earth's. It may have been ejected from its original orbit by Jupiter during the genesis of the Solar System, wrested from another star, captured as a rogue planet, or pulled into an eccentric orbit by a passing star.

Chameleon clothes

Chameleons can change the _____ (0) of their skin. _____ (232) they change color so that they are difficult to see and become _____ (233) invisible. Sometimes they change color to show that they are angry or happy, or looking for a partner.

Of course, humans can't change the color of their skin but we can change our clothes. Dark clothes make a person look _____ (234) powerful. Pink is romantic; blue is calm. The color of your clothes says a lot _____ (235) you.

Scientist are working _____ (236) clothes that can change color when you press a button. They are not ready yet, but the idea is to make pants that can change from white to black or a shirt that can change from white to pink or red. Chameleon clothes!

But clothes that change color are also _____ (237) for soldiers. Like the chameleon, soldiers sometimes need to be invisible. Chameleon clothes make the soldiers difficult to see.
So, maybe someday you will be able to change your clothes from powerful to romantic to invisible – at the press of a button!
